Fukuoka City's “Traditional crafts development project”

Hakata-Ori and Hakata-Ningyo have been reborn!

Hakata-Ori

Beautiful wrapping

A 'furoshiki' style drawstring wrap pouch

Overflowing with Japanese style, this eye-catching furoshiki pouch can easily become a part of your everyday life. The pouch is made with Hakata-Ori, a fitting companion to a kimono but a perfect match with your regular wear as well. It's great as a little accessory bag, to hold cosmetics or to even take with you on outings or when you travel.

Fukukaburi neko

A Fukuoka cat to bring good fortune

Cats love boxes and bags. As soon as they spot one, they jump in and make it their own. It's that very charm that inspired this adorable cat. In Japanese, 'fuku o kaburu' can be read as 'covered with a bag' or 'covered with good fortune' and looking at it all together, 'fukuokaburu', you can also see Fukuoka in there, making this auspicious kitty uniquely Fukuoka's.

White, Tabby, Calico and Siamese (4 colors) 3500 yen each

The traditional crafts, Hakata-Ori and Hakata-Ningyo, are the pride of Fukuoka and as such, we'd like to share the charm and the wonder of these crafts with more and more people. With that in mind, and with the hope of giving a 'Fukuoka-esque' feeling to the many people who visit from all around the world, we decided to embark on a new project. The Project Team 'Hakata Kogei Lovers' is made up of Hakata-Ori weavers and Hakata-Ningyo artists as well as local designers, radio DJ's of various nationalities, marketers and facilitators. In addition, we have designers who are working oveseas as special advisers to our project. Through market research, we were able to hear the voices of tourists who came from overseas, of international students, of foreign buyers, of designers and of our own team. And from all of these voices, a new kind of Hakata-Ori and Hakata-Ningyo was born.
